District No. 4. Summer Term—Ellen E. Fisher, Teacher.

This was Miss Fisher's first effort as teacher. She manifested a commendable degree of interest in her school, laboring diligently for the advancement of her pupils. The closing examination exhibited satisfactory evidence of progress.

Winter Term—P. C. Scott, Teacher. We are happy to say that Miss S. has fully sustained the high reputation she has so justly acquired in former terms. The performances of her scholars in Arithmetic and Algebra, and in all the other studies, showed that they had been thoroughly drilled, and that the ground which they had been over was well understood. Miss Scott deservedly ranks among our best teachers, and that district is peculiarly fortunate which secures her services.

District No. 5. Summer Term—Mary C. Wilkins, Teacher.

Miss W. was successful in this her first attempt as teacher. The advancement of her pupils in their several studies was satisfactory to those present at the closing examination, showing that her efforts had not been put forth in vain.

Winter Term—Frank A. Gordon, Teacher. The examination at the close of the term showed that a thorough course of instruction had been pursued, and that the scholars had not been encouraged to push forward faster than they could thoroughly understand what they were going over. It was evident that a good degree of interest had been felt by both teacher and pupils, and the progress made in the various studies was worthy of commendation.

This school had but one term during the year, in which Mr. T. made his first effort. He appeared to be studiously desirous of securing the best good of his school, but from some cause he failed to gain the affections of a part of his scholars. Several left, and after a time it became more quiet, and at the closing examination the school appeared very well. We think Mr. T. with a little more knowledge of human nature, and a little more energy in the school-room, will become a very acceptable teacher.

District No. 7. Summer Term—Mary J. Sanborn, Teacher.

Active and energetic, she led her scholars on with sufficient rapidity, but some of the ground will need to be travelled again before it will be thoroughly understood. A little more thoroughness would have been desirable.

District No. 8. Summer Term—Louisa M. Wellington, Teacher. Somewhat stern in her manners, she swelled rather than won. Very good order was secured in the school-room, and a good degree of advance was made, in some instances perhaps somewhat more than ordinary.

Winter Term—Charles H. Darling, Teacher. But few among us have had a larger experience, or perhaps been more generally successful than Mr. Darling. The school was visited after it had been in session a few days, and from the apparent interest of both teacher and scholars a good school was anticipated; on account of sickness in the teacher's family, however, it closed the day previous to the one set for examination. Your Committee have heard nothing contrary to, but several things confirmatory of their anticipation.

District No. 9. Summer Term—Lazzer R. Kimball, Teacher.

Winter Term—Lazzer H. Farrar, Teacher. Both terms were highly profitable, and the examinations at the close reflected credit upon teachers and scholars, and would compare well with those of some of the larger schools.

District No. 10. Summer Term—M. Abby Newhall, Teacher.

A young, but successful teacher. All was accomplished that could reasonably have been expected in so small a school. The order was perfect, and the recitations in a high degree accurate. In 264 days' attendance, there were only 7 tardinesses, and one dismissal.

Winter Term—Geo. W. Tucker, Teacher. What was said of the interest and success of the school, as reported above, might be repeated here. We are happy to say, on the authority of the teacher, that during 7 weeks and 2 days there was but one whisper in the school. The correspondence of the pupils with each other, during school hours, was carried on at recesses. For the entire neatness of the house for the uses of a school, see teacher's remarks at page 7, of the Register.

District No. 11. Summer Term—Herahitta Wilkins, Teacher.

The school has been kept in good order, and most of the scholars have made very good progress in their studies. The little ones have improved much in reading, and great interest in spelling was evinced.
throughout the school. Whispering was nearly excluded from the school-room.

Winter Term—Oliver Pillsbury, Teacher. The school opened under favorable circumstances, with an unusually large number of pupils, but it was brought to a premature close on account of the prostration by sickness of a large part of the scholars. During the progress of the term until it closed, Mr. P. labored with his usual good success.

District No. 12. Summer and Winter Terms—Hattie N. Donner, Teacher. The school was very small, and some of the pupils quite irregular. All has been accomplished that could have been expected under the circumstances.

District No. 13. Summer and Winter Terms—Mary F. Fellows, Teacher. Miss F. has been untried in her efforts, and like the teacher last mentioned, has earned a reputation which should secure her a larger school another season. The pupils have made very good progress.

Your Committee are happy to report the schools as having been generally prosperous during the year which has closed. Probably no former year has witnessed greater progress than the last in some of them, while in others it seems exceedingly difficult to inspire the pupils with any just appreciation of their privileges. While many are ambitious to acquire all the knowledge which the text books can give them, and eagerly catch every suggestion which falls from the teacher's lips, we regret to say there are others who care very little for either; and as their purpose seems to be to have as little acquaintance with their old books, and to be introduced to as few new ones as possible, no matter how long they may remain in the schools, they will graduate not far from zero in the literary scale. We would inquire whether this is necessary? Whether it would remain a truth, if the attention of parents were fully arrested to a consideration of it? Teachers can do much to remedy this evil, but they cannot accomplish the whole task without the cooperation of parents. Parents can do much by appointing an agent who will employ the highest priced teachers, if their wages only measure their fitness for the office they are called to fill.

Attention must be directed to numerous topics connected with the system of Common Schools, if we would perfect that system. We will not here, however, protract our remarks, but would solicit a careful perusal of the Annual Reports of the Board of Education, which contain many valuable suggestions. We would also earnestly invite our friends and fellow citizens more generally to attend the able and instructive lectures given by our Commissioner in his annual visits to the town. Respectfully submitted,

J. M. R. Eaton, Superintendent of Schools
Alex. W. Connor, Chairman of the Committee.
